ATTENTION: The format should follow Folia Primatologica guidelines. Please find examples in the following link: <http://www.karger.com/Article/Pdf/435825>

More especially, please pay attention to the following points:

- Each word in the title starts with an upper case letter and is in bold.
- Names of authors are in italics.
- Indicate address for each author.
- Indicate the email of the main author - just one email is needed.
- No keywords are needed.
- No figures or tables are allowed.

Studies should comply with the European Directive 2010/63/EU and/or the International Primatological Society (IPS) Guidelines for the Use of Nonhuman Primates in Research and, when applicable, specify the name/number of the protocols approved by institutional/governmental committees. However, the abstracts in Folia Primatologica don't need to say they follow ethical guidelines.

Authors should indicate their preference for:

- oral presentation scheduled in a symposium
- oral presentation
- poster presentation

All abstracts will be reviewed by the Scientific Committee that has the right to either refuse an abstract that do not meet professional standards or to designate it as oral or poster, and to choose a suitable session for its presentation. When possible the Scientific Committee will try to comply with authors requests. First authors will be notified of the status of their abstract in May 2017. We recommend to register after abstract acceptance is notified. Please remember that "Registration fees" are not-refundable.

The Scientific Committee will not normally enter into correspondence with submitting authors concerning rejected abstracts or proposals.

If you have any questions, please contact efp@alphavisa.com.

Call for papers

Participants are invited to submit their scientific work in any area of primatology for presentation in the EFP 2017 Meeting. If you intend to do so, please read the contents of this page carefully.

There will be three different session-types.

Symposium Sessions

A symposium session provides a broad synthesized review of a given topic, with ample time for discussion among attendees. Symposia should include participants from several institutions. Each session is composed of an appropriate number of oral presentations at the invitation of symposium organisers. Each individual presentation is 15 minute long (including questions).

- Symposium proposals are closed.
- Oral presentation scheduled in a symposium - For individual abstract submission within a symposium see below Abstract Guidelines and Submission.

General Sessions

Oral contributions that are not part of a specific symposium will be allocated to a General Session and, when possible, grouped together by themes. Details can be found in the “Oral presentation” page.

Poster Sessions

One Poster Session (or more, depending on the total number of poster presentations) will take place during the Congress. Details can be found in the “Poster presentation” page.

For abstract submission of oral and poster presentations see below Abstract Guidelines and Submission.

General rules

- The same person cannot organise more than one symposium;
- The first author of each presentation should present it orally, or stand by the poster during poster session(s);
- The same person cannot be first author of more than one oral presentation. Invited speakers may organise also a symposium, but not be first author of one of the symposium presentation;
- The same person can co-author more than one presentation;
- As the abstracts will be published and may be cited, they should summarize your work so that the study can be understood without additional information.
